

AN ESCAPED JAIL-BIRD.

Arrest in Omaha of an Iowa Confidence Man,

Who Twice Broke Jail and Baffled the Authorities.

Safe Behind the Bars Now.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Officer Joe Rowles arrested a man, who called himself Charles Morgan, upon information leading him to believe he was one of the confidence men, or in plainer terms thieves, who had a hand in the robbery of Mr. Alfred Wolf of the Western brewery, corner Twenty-Second and Cumings street.

The circumstances of the theft, as narrated by Wolf to a Bee reporter, are these: On Tuesday last, two men entered Wolf's place, in which at the time there were no persons except a stranger and Wolf himself. These two men asked for beer or something and then one of them engaged Wolf in conversation, the two having previously given the third party in the room ten cents and sent him out on some trivial errand. Wolf and the man were engaged as earnestly in their conversation that the other of them took advantage of his back being turned and slipped his hand into Wolf's coat, which was hanging up behind him, and took from it a pocketbook containing about $100. Wolf says he noticed that this man suddenly walked past him and told his companion to "come on," but that as he (Wolf) went to the door and looked after the parties, who soon separated down the street, he thought no more of it for some time.

About two hours after these fellows left Wolf missed his pocket book, and then the whole transaction flashed upon him. He knew these men as idlers whom he had several times told the police to look after, as he thought they were members of a gang of some half dozen therabouts who were, to say the least, suspicious characters.

On yesterday Wolf became almost convinced that this man whom Officer Rowles arrested was one of the men who entered his place of business, and had him arrested, as detailed above, on the charge of being a suspicious character. He was taken to jail, where he now is.

It seldom happens, as a rule, but that the ends of justice are in some way reached. Later in the day inquiry into the matter, by the state of facts that almost set at rest another matter, that for years has been troubling at least one officer, and he is Sheriff Farrell, of Mills county. It seems that about two years ago a man named, or calling himself George, alias William McFarland, was in jail in Fort Madison, Iowa, upon a charge of larceny, and escaped. During our visit to the sheriff came from Fort Madison to this city hoping to find McFarland here about that time, and failed. It also appears that he had been captured subsequently and jailed and again escaped. The officer was here and long ago again in search of him and left almost despairing of finding him.

Yesterday evening Marshal Cummings, after consultation with his officers, and reviewing the circumstances and description of the man "Morgan," then and then in jail, became satisfied that the "Morgan" as now claimed to be and the McFarland as then claimed to be, are one and the same party, and in consequence took the necessary steps to make sure of Mr. "Morgan's" safety and delivery to whomsoever has a claim on him, should he prove to be George, alias "Billy" McFarland.

Up to this writing nothing has been accomplished towards the arrest of the other man, who, Mr. Wolf believes, is the man who took his money on Tuesday.

It is probable that during to-day something additional as to the identity of "Morgan" will be learned, and that he will be shown beyond doubt to be the "escaped jail-bird."

Metropolitan Club Social.

"Run up to the hall if you have time to-night and see us; I can promise you at least a courteous welcome," said a well known society gentleman to a Bee reporter yesterday afternoon. The invitation was acted on, and the gathering found to be the last of this season's socials of the Metropolitan Club—a private society, of which our best Hubbard citizens are members, organized some two years ago and devoted to social enjoyments.

There were about thirty-five couples assembled in Metropolitan hall and under the persuasive music of the "Musical Union orchestra," they were enjoying themselves as only happy people can who are devoted followers of the dancing muse.

It was a nice and select party, among whose attendants the reporter noted: Messrs. Moritz Meyer and lady, Adolph Meyer and lady, S. Sloman and lady, B. Newman and lady, M. Glanville and lady, S. Kahn and lady, Geo. Heyn and lady, A. Madelberg and lady, F. Adler and lady, Max Meyer and lady, and others whose names were unknown to the reporter; Misses Newman, Brandles, Hirsch, Minnie and Alice Rothschild, Schlesinger, Fisher, Sellgoss and Rosenstock; and among the single gentlemen were Messrs. Wm. Sutton, S. Overlander, I. Schick, S. Fisher, J. New, M. Schlesinger, M. Brandles, I. Eichman, M. Cohn, S. Kahn (of Chicago), and Julius Meyer.

The party suspended dancing only to partake of a sumptuous repast, until at a late hour the enjoyable exercises closed the present season, which has been a most pleasant one to the members of this club.

Amusement Notes.

W. J. Scanlan, the Irish minstrel, was greeted by a large audience at the opera house Tuesday night, and one, too, that was very enthusiastic. Scanlan is a born comedian, and his bubbling humor, easy presence, and graceful abandon, which serve to win at once the heart of the audience. He sang a number of songs, among them the inimitable "Peek-a-boo," and in all of them he was obliged to respond to vociferous applause.

house is crowded nightly to witness the performance of the Georgia Minstrels, who are giving a very amusing and pleasing show.

A U. P. WRECK.

A Bad Smashup at Fremont Yesterday Morning.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning freight No. 26, known as the Columbus east bound, on the Union Pacific, was partially derailed at Fremont. A part of the automatic brake became loose, and dragging on the ground, caught on the frog of a switch. The four last cars were derailed, thrown down an embankment, and were pretty badly smashed. So far as can be learned at this writing, no one was injured in the smashup. A wrecking train was sent out about 1 o'clock to clear up the debris.

OMAHA LOAN AND TRUST CO.

An Institution that is About to Become One of the Country's Greatest Moneyed Concerns.

Swift upon the tidings that United States Treasurer A. U. Wyman has resigned, came the further information that he has been elected vice-president of the Omaha National Bank here, and will be a director and stockholder in it, actively participating in the management of its affairs. This is a piece of welcome news, but there is this further fact which will be of interest to Omaha, and in fact the west. Mr. Wyman will also be president, stockholder and director of the newly organized Omaha Loan and Trust company, which will connect him closely with Omaha business men.

The paid up capital of this company will be increased to $500,000, making it one of the largest institutions of the kind between Chicago and San Francisco. It will transact a general loan and trust business, will negotiate state, county and city bonds, etc., and do a general business in its line with farmers and other private persons. In this line it will be a benefit to the entire section.

Among its directors are such men as T. L. Ames, of Boston, G. W. Williams, of the New York Chemical National Bank, W. J. Quinlan, cashier of the Chemical National Bank, N. W. Wells, the well-known Schuyler capitalist, A. R. Converse, president of the First National of Cheyenne; G. C. Barton, president of the Omaha & Grant Smelting company; S. R. Calloway and T. L. Kimball, of the Union Pacific railroad; Max Meyer, the Omaha capitalist; J. W. Linsinger, also of Omaha; J. H. Millard, president of the Omaha National Bank; S. H. H. Clark and E. H. Nash, cashier of the Omaha & Grant Smelting company.

Twenty-three years ago Mr. Wyman was here with the Omaha National Bank. He left here and took a workshop in the treasury department at Washington; then became cashier in that department, then assistant treasurer, then treasurer, which last position he has just resigned and will now here about the 15th of next month. It may therefore be truly said that his coming to live with us is an event of importance and the institution over which he will preside is about to be one of the country's greatest moneyed concerns.

The Hagen Case.

The readers of the Bee will doubtless remember the mysterious circumstances connected with the disappearance of a man named Hagen last spring or summer and the finding of a body in the Missouri river which has been supposed to be that of Hagen, though not entirely identified. It seems that recently more facts in this relation have come to light, either under the stimulus of a greater reward which it is known has been or will be very soon offered by the father-in-law of Hagen for facts to establish beyond a doubt the identity of the body or clear up the mystery of his disappearance and almost certain untimely death; if not murder.

These new facts are succinctly: That a friend of Hagen has recently made it known that on the night when he was last seen, he (Hagen) told him he had a railroad pass to Chicago at the transfer in Council Bluffs, and that, as he had to go to Chicago immediately, and there was no train over the river, he would hire someone to ferry him over, and then left his friend, who next heard of his disappearance. It turns out that the ticket or pass was at the transfer, but was not sold for, and Hagen has not been seen since. The additional reward offered by Mr. Morrison, father-in-law of Hagen, will, it is supposed, lead to renewed effort in this case, and the above named facts may serve a good purpose.

Wonderful Glimpses.

Homer sang (if a Homer ever existed) as no master of Greek oratory or after his time sang an epic story. If he was not himself, somebody was he, or he was made to personate somebody and in the Iliad and the Odyssey he launched upon the tide of time a story which tells of wonders. But these wonders are imaginary, dealing with Gods and ghosts and warrior deities.

LEGAL LORE.

Postponement of Further Deposition of Testimony in the Election Contest.—Other Notes.

The attorneys for the contestant and contestant in the Boyd-Murphy case met promptly at 10 o'clock yesterday in Judge Bartlett's court, to resume the deposition of testimony. By agreement, however, of E. W. Simeral, representing Mr. Duncan, and Judge Deane on behalf of Mr. Boyd, the further taking of testimony was postponed until May 4, at 10 a. m. in the same place. This move has been made in order to allow the evidence for the prosecution to be more fully gathered and placed in available shape.

DISTRICT COURT.

In the district court yesterday morning a petition was filed by Mary Nelson, administrator for her two children, Lida and Emma, asking that the $1,000 worth of real estate which she holds in trust, may be disposed of at once. She claims that she is very poor and cannot support her children, while the real estate, as now held, is nothing more than a burden.

Two new suits were brought yesterday in the district court, by Wadell W. Nugent et al. for work, etc., claim $190, and McGreer et al. vs. Nugent et al., for work, etc., claim $83.40.

On Monday this court will meet again, both judges present and the equity docket will be taken up.

COUNTY COURT.

In the county court yesterday the case of Walsh vs. Patterson, for labor performed, resulted in a verdict of $20 85 for the plaintiff.

Yesterday Judge McCulloch tried the ejectment case of West & Fritcher against the Times-Dispatch for non-payment of rent. Judgment has been reserved.

UNITED STATES COURT.

In the case of Boone county against the B. & M. railway, a suit to recover about $90,000 unpaid taxes, and now pending before this tribunal for final determination upon the proofs at the coming term of court, a brief was filed by defendant's attorney, Hon. T. M. Married, making five pages. The brief of Gen. Court, plaintiff's attorney, was filed a short time ago, covering seventy-six folios.

CONTESTED POLICIES.

The Trial of the Howitt Insurance Case at Marion, Iowa.

It is very probable that Elisha Gish and Capt. Frank D. Kent will go to Marion, Iowa, to-day, to testify in the celebrated insurance contest case of W. H. Hewitt, which will shortly be tried in the district court of that place. These two gentlemen are the only two living witnesses in the case, which is one of peculiar interest.

On the morning of July 14, 1884, Mr. Hewitt, who was visiting at the time in this city, was crossing the North Omaha bottoms, where he accidentally fell into a bog, or mucky ditch, where he sank lower and lower. He struggled vainly to extricate himself, but soon disappeared and was smothered before his cries for help brought assistance. His dead body was afterwards discovered by his wife, Mrs. A. J. Vetter, who secured a verdict rendered in accordance with the facts of the case. Williams, the only important witness, is now dead, as is also the coroner, John G. Jacobs, and the juryman on the case are now either dead or removed from the city, with the exception of Messrs. Gish and Kent, upon whose testimony the outcome of the case largely depends.

Hewitt's life was insured for $10,000, and the insurance companies are not content with the plain theory that Hewitt's death was accidental. They set up the plea of suicide, and hope to evade on this ground, the payment of the policy.

A Lost Child Happy.

A pretty and cheerful little three-year-old girl, who said her name was "Jennie," was found lost yesterday near Twenty-second and Butt streets. She has light hair and eyes, wore a blue worsted jacket and seemed perfectly contented with the kind hearted officers and people who had her. She was left at first with a family; as the above named place, then under the direction of Judge Stenberg, was taken to the Woman's Aid Society rooms, Fifteenth and Farnam, where, up to the time of dusk, she was happy as a little cherub.

Happy Hearts.

Mr. Thomas O'Connor, of this city, and Miss Alice O'Connor, of New York, N. Y., were united in the bonds of matrimony at the bride's home on Tuesday, the 14th of this month. The happy couple arrived in Omaha on last Monday evening, and Tuesday evening gave a very pleasant reception at the groom's residence, Fifteenth and Martha streets, which was attended by a few of the groom's most intimate friends, who were entertained in royal style by the groom and his accomplished young lady. Dancing was indulged in until midnight when supper was served. The following were among the presents: A silver watch, silver butter dish, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs, silver cake stand, Thomas Nelson, agent U. P. & M. P. R. R., set silver spoons, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Morearty, set silver knives, Miss Katie Lynch, set glass wine set, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifford, china tea set (38 pieces) and set silver, a few toys at U. P. freight office, two silver pitchers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barnes, silver casket, Frank Agnis and Mrs. M. J. Clark, set linen towels, Mrs. and Mrs. P. W. Lynch. Aside from those a number of valuable presents were received at the bride's home in New York.

A THUMASCOPE.

For those readers of THE BEE who may happen to have become a little "thumascopic" is derived from two Greek words, meaning "a vision of wonders," and right happily has it been applied to the instrument examined by the reporter yesterday in this city. It is indeed the most marvelous piece of mechanism imaginable, and when set in motion by a galvanic battery gives forth the sweetest, softest music, whose every note is illustrated by a spiritual manifestation, creating a scene among the cradles, and partitions and easily doped. It is indeed a scientific wonder, practically operated by means of that subtle fluid which will yet be harnessed to trains of cars, vessels to navigate the air and the very farming implements that tear open the virgin breezes of our prairie homes.

This instrument, whose exquisite operations are easily accounted for upon purely scientific principles, would, if blended to be a spiritual manifestation, create a scene among the cradles, and partitions and easily doped. It is indeed a scientific wonder, practically operated by means of that subtle fluid which will yet be harnessed to trains of cars, vessels to navigate the air and the very farming implements that tear open the virgin breezes of our prairie homes.

A Recherche Affair.

The literary and musical exercises Tuesday night in St. Philomena's hall, under the auspices of the St. Philomena's Temperance society made up one of those rare and chaste exhibitions of talent that are bright in one's memory for years. The programme, as announced was in the main faithfully carried out, and the creditable way in which each person rendered the part assigned him or her, was the best evidence of good taste and judgment of the society's management.

Among the large audience had greeted the performance—for it was a most edifying performance—were many who did not feel instructed and improved, and the ladies and gentlemen who so conspicuously contributed to the enjoyment of the occasion, received, as they richly deserved, most cheery plaudits and approval. Each one applauded himself, and surrounded by smiles and merited applause the last player bowed herself from the stage.

Almost Loss of Life.

Yesterday morning about 9 o'clock the north approach of the Saunders street bridge fell in with a crash, owing partly to some defect in the construction and partly to the non-completion of the approach. It so happened that at the time of the disaster there was passing over the bridge a buggy, containing a lady and a little boy. The lady extricated herself all right, but the boy was thrown down upon the under portion of the broken bridge, and became wedged in between the gas and sewer pipes. Here he was rescued by two men who happened to be passing at the time. If it had not been for the fortunate circumstance of the lad's falling upon the pipes, he would have been precipitated into the creek below, where he undoubtedly would have been drowned.

The north approach of the bridge needs attending to at once. The attention of the authorities has been called repeatedly to the fact that the structure is in a dangerous condition. It should be repaired at once before some dangerous injury or possibly loss of life ensues.
